4 MOTHERS, 10 CHILDREN.

These children are being brought up on Castoria. Read what the mothers say about Castoria. There is no opium, morphine or other narcotic substance in Castoria. The formula is printed on the wrapper of every bottle. It is perfectly harmless, pleasant to take and positively effective. Physicians prescribe Castoria, mothers give Castoria, and Children cry for Castoria. It gives the child health and the mother rest.

"I certify that Bittie Robbie Hale, of 495 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, was a thin, crying baby from his birth until he was given Castoria. He began to improve from the first week's trial. Has taken 13 bottles; is perfectly well; weighed 30 pounds the day he was 2 months old, and when this picture was taken, Robbie's changed condition has caused many mothers to use Castoria. It is the best thing for babies I have ever known."

"This is a picture of my twins, Charlie and William. It was taken when they were 5 months old. They weigh 10 pounds each. I am indebted to Castoria for their uniform good health."
MRS. HERMINE SCHULZE.
1629 Lexington Ave.,
New York, May 23rd, 1887.

"I enclose you photographs of my triplets' 2 boys and 1 girl—Maggie, Pettie and Willie. I owe their health and strength to Castoria. It was through my neighbors' urgent appeals that I commenced to use it, as both my boys were thin and inclined to be sickly. At present they are fat and hearty, they weigh 8, 8½ and 9½ pounds, and are 2 months and 3 days old."
MRS. MARY KLINGER.

How Chinese Make Pearls.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—A new evidence of Chinese cunning has just come to light. Some days ago an Englishman exhibited an unusually valuable lot of unset pearls to an expert of these gems in this city. He bought for $1,500 a number of fine ones, apparently worth $5,000. On weighing them he found that they weighed about four times more than they should. He finally took them to another expert, and it was at last decided to break one of them. This was done, when it was found to be filled with lead. The second expert, who has lived in China, says that the Chinese catch oysters and mussels, pry open the shells and drop bullets into them. This causes irritation, and a regular layer of pearl is formed around the lead.

THE KILLING OF KEMMLER

DETAILS OF THE FIRST DEATH BY ELECTRICITY.

A Sickening Sight—The Body Fumes and Gives off Unpleasant Odors—The New Mode of Exit Pronounced a Failure by Experts—Scenes and Incidents.

AUBURN, Aug. 6.—Kemmler spent the last day much as those immediately before it, in writing a monotonous repetition of his name, and in talking with the keepers. The effort to surround the affair with a halo of mystery, such as the law contemplated, was not altogether successful. The outer world did not know the exact hour fixed, but it knew the time approximately, and a little assemblage of loiterers at the gate of the prison before dawn this morning was good evidence that the interest in the event was keen and general. Besides these, curiosity seekers were active and anxious. A corps of newspaper reporters gathered in the broad road in front of the prison grounds, and waited for the signal that should tell that the execution was over. Just across the road in the dimly lighted freight room of the New York Central railway, at little tables improvised for the purpose, sat a long row of telegraph operators, sent from New York by the Western Union Telegraph Co., watching for a sign of release on a dozen messages filed for the different papers in New York and elsewhere, and at one end of the telegraph desk sat the operator of the United Press, with a special representative of the United Press, who had come to Auburn at the invitation of Warden Durston. The jurymen in a little prison cell noted the adjustment of the straps. Witnesses of execution gathered in response to the call of Warden Durston at 6 o'clock this morning. The law named 27 as the number of those who should witness the execution as assistants or in some official capacity. Two spiritual advisers were chosen, the chaplain of the prison, Mr. Yates, and Dr. Houghton of the First Methodist Church, as his constant companion. The law further named as persons to be invited to the execution by the warden one judge of the supreme bench of the State, two doctors, two electrical experts and a jury of twelve persons. These, with the warden himself and six assistants, make up a list of 27. Warden Durston had left a quiet "call" for witnesses and ordered them to report at the prison at six o'clock. An hour before their coming, Rev. R. Houghton and Chaplain Yates appeared at the gate of the prison and were admitted. After a brief consultation with the warden they were taken down to Kemmler's cell, where the condemned man was already awake and talking with the keeper. The witnesses as they arrived gathered in the warden's office.

DESCRIPTION OF THE DEATH.

At 8:35 the door at the right of the execution chair, leading towards the execution room, opened and Warden Durston's figure appeared. Behind him walked a spruce-looking broad-shouldered little man, full-bearded, with carefully arranged hair clustering around his forehead. He was dressed in a suit of new clothing, sack coat and vest of gray material, trousers of mixed yellow pattern, while a shirt whose polished front exposed directly below a wide bow of lawn of black and white check pattern. This was W. Kemmler, the man who was about to undergo death, behind him walked Dr. W. E. Houghton and Chaplain Yates. Kemmler was far the coolest man in the parade. He did not look about the room with any special degree of interest. He hesitated as the door closed behind him, and was carefully locked by an attendant on the other side, as though he did not know exactly what to do. "Give me a chair, will you," said the warden. Some one quickly handed the warden a chair, which he placed in front and a little to the right of the execution chair, facing the little circle of men. Kemmler sat down composedly and looked about him, and then up and down without any evidence of fear or especial interest in the event. His face was not stolid. It was not indifferent. He looked if anything as though rather pleased at being the centre of interest. Warden Durston stood at the left of the chair, with his hand on the back of it, and almost at the moment Kemmler took his seat, he began to speak in short quick periods. "Now, gentlemen," he said, "this is William Kemmler, I have warned him that he has got to die, and if he has anything to say he will say it." As the Warden finished, Kemmler looked up and said in a high key voice, without hesitation and as though he had prepared himself with the speech: "Well, I wish every one good luck in this world, and I think I am going to a good place. The papers have been saying a lot of stuff that isn't so, that's all I have to say." With the conclusion of the speech he turned his back on the jury, took off his coat and handed it to the Warden. This disclosed the fact that a hole had been cut from the band of the trousers down so as to expose the base of the spine.

Kemmler was killed at 6:40 this morning. The first shock was not successful, and he revived. There was frequent respiration, though the doctors claim no consciousness. After some delay the current was turned on and kept for 45 minutes, the first contact having been 15 seconds. The current was kept on the second time till the body fumed and gave off unpleasant odors. Dr. Spitzke, the celebrated expert, said afterward that the experiment was a failure and would settle electrocution. There will never be another. He said to your correspondent that the doctors united in the belief that death was painless and all consciousness was destroyed at the moment of contact. The sight in the execution room was sickening. At 7 o'clock the witnesses left the execution room under an agreement to return at 8:40. An autopsy will be held at 8:30. Kemmler displayed great bravery, and helped to adjust the fastenings that bound him to the chair. No one knows who pulled the lever that turned on the current.

A hole was cut through the trousers to allow the electrode to press the bare flesh at the base of the spine. Kemmler sat in the electric chair and talked pleasantly, and assisted in the adjustment of the straps. After the rubber cap and sponge had been fastened to his head, Kemmler said "Press that down further," which was done. When the leather harness had been adjusted to his head, the warden asked, "Do the doctors say it is all right?"

Dr. Fell then wetted, with a syringe, the electrodes, one on top of the head and one at the base of the spine. Dr. Spitzka said "All right." "Ready?" asked the warden. The "good bye" was signalled to the next room, the current turned on and a sudden convulsion of the frame took place, a spasm from head to foot twitching the muscles. The face expressed pain, but there was no cry from the lips which were free to move. There were no sound suggesting that consciousness lasted over a fraction of a second. The body became rigid in seventeen seconds. It is supposed the dead lips dropped spittle and the chest moved. A heavy sound proceeded from the mouth. The current was restored, the dynamo being put to its full speed of a current of 2000 volts until a vapor arose and the body gave out a pungent odor when the current was stopped.

The doctors disagreed as to using the second current. There were twenty-seven witnesses present who were horror-struck at the proceedings. One fainted at the burning flesh. Autopsy revealed that the second electrode at the base of spine had burned the flesh a space of five inches in diameter. All vital organs have been preserved for future examinations.

Over an Embankment.

INNSPRUCK, Austria, Aug. 6.—News has been received of a railway horror that happened at Boels station near here. An express train suddenly left the trails, rolled down an embankment, with three cars falling into the stream. There were 120 people on the cars at the time and there was a terrible struggle. It is believed that the loss of life is very high, some placing it at 100.

Central America.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 6.—Advices have reached this city from Tegacigalpa, the capital of Honduras, to the effect that the cabinet meeting held by President Bogran of Honduras could not yet consistently lend any aid to Guatemala in her fight against Salvador. The Honduras cabinet also came to a conclusion that in view of the present doubtful state of affairs between Guatemala and San Salvador, it would not be advisable to hold the proposed Central American congress in the capital of Honduras on August 20th as agreed upon. Bogran has consequently addressed notes to the presidents of other countries in Central America, explaining the advisability of postponing the congress until a date to be agreed upon by all.

President Celman Resigns.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—A dispatch from Buenos Ayres says, President Celman having been abandoned by Appelligrini, Rocca, Pena and Garcia, thus becoming completely isolated, has been forced to present his resignation to a joint meeting of the chambers. The presentation of his resignation is probably a trick. The chambers have a constitutional right to decide whether the President's reasons for resigning are sufficient to warrant the acceptance of his resignation. Celman declares that his resignation is irrevocable.

European War Rumors.

BERLIN, Aug. 5.—Prince Bismarck's newspaper organ, the Hamburger Nachrichten, asserts that General Count Von Waldersee and other eminent and well known persons in the entourage of Kaiser Wilhelm, are strongly urging upon the Kaiser their belief that both the time and the situation of European affairs are now opportune for the consummation of a combined attack by the powers of the triple alliance, together with Turkey and Bulgaria, upon Russia. Count Von Waldersee instantly wired to the newspapers a flat denial of the assertion of the Nachrichten, but the latter maintains the truth of its statement, and declares that such a scheme of co-operation is really advised by the Waldersee circle.

THE CAPITAL.

Big Fire at Ottawa—The English-Canadian Cattle Trade.

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—Bollard & Co.'s dry goods store was burned down early yesterday morning. Loss twenty thousand; partially insured.

A special cablegram from London, England, says that some American steamers arriving there with swine had several affected with swine fever. The agricultural department maintains that Plimsoll's remarks regarding the cattle trade with England cannot apply to the Canadian trade, the regulations, inspections and sanitary arrangements being such to prevent this.

HON. DAVID MILLS' VIEW

On the Behring Sea Question—America's Policy in the Matter.

TORONTO, Aug. 5.—Hon. David Mills in a speech on the Behring Sea question at Dresden on Emancipation Day, said: "Unless President Harrison is prepared to abandon the traditional policy of the United States in reference to the freedom of this sea, his government has no case of sovereignty over Behring Sea, or what was formerly known as the North Pacific Ocean. The preservation of seals is of far less consequence than the preservation of our rights as free people upon high seas. We ought not to yield to a foreign power in what should justify revolution against the parent state; and we ought not to yield, under pretence of preserving the seals, that which the United States refused in order to save men and women from chains and slavery.

THE WELLINGTON FIASCO

HOW THE MILITIA WERE RECEIVED BY THE STRIKERS.

Perfect Quiet Among the Miners—No Evidence of a Contemplated Breach of the Peace—All the People Very Indignant at the Action of the Authorities.

Special to the TIMES.

WELLINGTON, Aug. 6.—Your correspondent left Victoria at half past one yesterday afternoon on the train carrying the troops to Wellington. Twenty-five men of the B. C. B. G. A. were on board under the command of Captain Quinlan. By the courtesy of Mr. Hunter your correspondent was a passenger, and started off as special "war correspondent." The train steamed over to Russell's Station, and there took on a lot of baggage, amongst it being several ominous looking ammunition cases, marked "Ball Cartridge, Snyder Rifle, 1882." A half mile beyond Russell's Station the train was again stopped and a contingent of 25 men from C Battery, under the command of Capt. Bensen, were taken on board. Lt.-Col. Holmes, D. A. G., here took command and the train was started for the "seat of war" with

FIFTY ARMED SOLDIERS.

Conductor Sloan had orders to rush the train through, and engineer John Hughes gave No. 2 a full throttle, and the way she climbed the rails was a caution. Without a stop and almost without slackening speed, the train swept onward over the trestles and through cuttings, the cars rocking and swaying with the speed. The men chatted and talked over the probable outcome of the affair. C. Battery men, like all regulars, took the business as a matter of course, but the members of the B. C. B. G. A., were not so phlegmatic. For the most part were all sorry they had to go. "But then we must," they said, and it was plain to be seen they had no stomach for the job in hand. Not that fear had an abiding place in their minds. Far from it, but evidently they were.

MORE THAN HALF ASHAMED,

of the whole ridiculous farce, for farce it turned out, as will be seen later on. At Cobble Hill a message was passed to the train and a rumor soon gained currency that it was an order to hasten the speed of the flying train. Another rumor gained currency that there was "trouble" at the mines, and that the troops were urgently needed. This rumor was strengthened by the fact that a general serving out of ball cartridge followed close upon the receipt of the message. The train swept by Nanaimo two hours and twenty minutes after leaving Victoria, and proceeded straight on to Wellington. The soldiers began putting on their knapsacks and side arms. Rifles were taken in hand, and an air of expectancy prevailed, for what could all this rush and hurry mean but

RIOT AND BLOODSHED.

With a last shrill whistle the locomotive ran into Wellington. Your correspondent looked in vain for flaming houses but not a sign of incendiarism could be seen. The Wellington hotel, with a few loungers around the doors, a few wide-eyed children staring at the soldiers as they disembarked—that was all. But perhaps in the shrubbery there lies hid a crowd of bloodthirsty socialists, and the eye instinctively peers into the underbrush. Nothing was seen, however, but black stumps. The soldiers were drawn up in ranks, and the Messrs. James Dunsmuir and Alex. Dunsmuir, who came down to meet the train and have a talk with Col. Holmes. The men are ordered, "by fours, march," and up the road they go, towards the railway station. At this moment a shows over the hill, and coming toward the soldiers is seen a body of men in miner's garb, perhaps 200 strong. Your correspondent got his note book ready, and being a man of peace, instinctively got a big stump of a tree between himself and the place of meeting.

Hark! what is that? A wild chant breaks upon the ear. It is the miners, nearly all of whom are Belgians, and they are singing a welcome song to the soldiers, whom they call "Mes Brave Soldats." The two columns come closer and closer. A collision is inevitable. Your correspondent waits with bated breath for the dread tragedy to commence, but when they meet and the road being wide, pass each other, the miners in many cases politely lifting their hats to the soldiers. Everybody breathed more freely. It was then noticed that in the column was carried hanging to a scaffold the effigy of a black-leg miner. Grotesque and gruesome it looked, swinging in the air as the men marched along. The red flags, too, were now seen to be with the cabalistic letters M. & M. L.P. A. and K. of L. on them, indicative that the bearers were members of the Knights of Labor and the Miners and Laborers' Union. The miners stopping at the top of the hill near the hotel, the soldiers at the railway station. Your correspondent then asked himself "what were the troops sent up for?" but failing to get a reply he concluded to ask somebody else, and seeing the genial face of the Colonist representative the same question was propounded to that obliging gentleman. "I'm blest if I know," said he. Your correspondent concluded to ask some of the officials, and approaching a special constable put the question:

"WHY WERE TROOPS ASKED FOR?"

"Well, you see," was the reply, "yesterday a lot of them got together and marched up and down the street, yelling and singing. They call the men who had gone to work a lot of black-leg ————, and made considerable noise."

"Did they use violences" was asked.

"Well, no, but then they might have done so. They are a very excitable lot of men, are these Belgians, and there are very few police."

"Then the soldiers were sent for more as a deterrent measure than to protect the lives and property of the miners who desire to go to work and mine owners?"

"Yes, that's about it," was the reply.

"Who sent for them?" was asked. To this no answer could be got.

Now all this time the soldiers had been standing at ease near the station, their ranks once broken by a dog fight. The miners had marched back to the main street, where they were met by who happened along there at that moment with a buggy and a copy of the Riot Act.

Instead of reading the latter, he stopped his buggy, and standing up said he would like a few words with the men. All clustered around the vehicle, and Mr. Planta addressed them at some length, showing them clearly how little could be gained by such parades, and pointing out that the best way to do was to be quiet and orderly. The men protested that they were quiet. Mr. Planta then asked them to dismember the effigy, saying he did not order it done, he only asked it as a favor. The men at once complied with his request, and the effigy was soon torn into a dozen pieces, the miners seeming willing to do anything required of them. Mr. Planta then advised the miners to try and settle their grievances with the mine owners in a manlike and quiet spirit, and confident that no trouble was brewing, he drove off.

A SENSIBLE COMMANDER.

While Mr. Planta was conversing with the miners, Col. Holmes had been making a few remarks to the men under his charge. He referred to the fact that it was not for them to ask why they were there. He pointed out the duties of the soldiers. They were there to preserve the peace and not to break it. By no word or action were they to irritate the miners. If it became necessary to fire, which he sincerely hoped and believed it would not, he, and he alone, would give the order. No soldier was to fire without his personal order, under the direst penalties. Neither were the soldiers to open their cartridge cases, unless ordered to do so by him, and any one so doing would be locked up in a box car at once until Victoria was reached. He hoped and believed the trouble could be easily settled, and while there the soldiers must preserve a forbearing demeanor at all hazards, even if insulted and abused. After his remarks Col. Holmes walked over to where the miners were on parade. He looked at the banners, smiled and said, "You had better put the national colors above them," and passed on to the hotel. The soldiers were then detailed off to supper at the hotel and the miners dispersed.

Two or three of the miners were interviewed. None of them seemed to know why the troops were brought here, or by whose request. They all stated, however, that they knew that the soldiers were coming early in the morning, and this, too, despite the fact that great secresy had been maintained. Several were of the opinion that the reports published in the Victoria morning paper were largely responsible, these reports being stigmatized as utterly false.

The citizens of Nanaimo are very indignant over the whole affair, and speak in no unmistakable manner of the disgraceful business, and it is proposed to get up a monster indignation meeting to protest against the course that has been pursued.

Although in the capacity of a reporter of facts, your correspondent thinks he is justified in stating it as his opinion that the sending of the troops was a mistake. Of course, I can not say from personal knowledge what occurred before they came, neither can I say what would have happened had the troops not put in an appearance, but so far I have seen nothing to indicate that any violence was anticipated. Carrying an effigy through the streets may have been a source of terror to women and nervous people and possibly persons in delicate health may have received a shock. I may say that when the news that the military were here had spread, a good deal of uneasiness was manifested by little children and women whose fathers and husbands were in the ranks of the miners, but this disquiet was soon allayed. In my opinion, had Supt. of Provincial Police Langley been in uniform at first with six men also in uniform, it would have been sufficient force, for as is well know a uniform has a sedative influence on the masses. It is reported here that Mr. Langley, who has been up here a day or two, did not put on his uniform until the troops arrived. A little judgment and a proper show of authority would, in my opinion, have been sufficient.

MR. KEITH, M. P. P.,

Strongly Condemns the Mine Owners for Sending Up the Militia.

Special to the TIMES.]

NANAIMO, Aug. 6.—Your correspondent had an interview with Mr. Thos. Keith, M.P.P., last evening. The first question asked was:

"Why were the troops sent for?"

Mr. Keith said: "The Messrs. Dunsmuir & Co., finding that the popular feeling of sympathy was going with the evicted miners, and as the miners were not alone getting sympathy but very substantial help from many places, it was therefore very desirable on their part that a stop should be put to those things, for of course the more help the miners got the longer they would be able to stand against them, and Messrs. Dunsmuir doubtless thought that if by any means the miners broke the law or committed some overt act of violence, it naturally would help to alienate the sympathy of those generous people who at the call of the miners, in distress sent tents and other necessaries. The real state of affairs was misrepresented sufficiently to justify the action of the authorities in sending a contingent of C Battery to Wel-

A FRENCH DUDE FISHING.

The Gallic Idea of Sport Typified in a Parisian Piscator.

I shall never forget a fellow I saw one day last summer, just outside of Paris, fishing in the Seine.

To prelude, the laws are very strict over there in regard to fishing and shooting. The seasons open and shut like a jack knife with a snap, and woe to the transgressor. On a certain day in July, I think, the season opens, and long before daylight of the day the banks of the river all along the Bois de Boulogne are lined with fishermen sitting side by side, almost elbow to elbow. I strolled down to the river one day and witnessed the sport. Taking out a cigar I paid a woman two sous for a chair, and sat down to get a wrinkle in French fishing. For half an hour all sat in silence with not a movement. Presently one fellow had a nibble. Immediately every eye was turned on the little red float on his line. The float moved perceptibly. The man, with every nerve strained and eyes riveted on the float, breathless with excitement, watched. The float dipped again. The man pulled, and the cork came to the surface, but no fish. All along the line of fishermen there was an ejaculation of "Ah!" The disappointed fisherman put on a fresh piece of bait and waited. Presently the fish took hold again, and this time he had him. Carefully he worked him in to the bank, and an attendant slipped a delicate landing net under the fish and carried him up the bank. There was a cry all along the line of fifty or more fishermen of "Bon, bon, tres joli." Several laid down their rods and gathered around the basket, lined with leaves, in which the fish was carefully placed. He was a monster, nearly six inches long, and must have weighed about four ounces. Then all went at it again with renewed hope and courage.

Presently a cab drove up and there descended from it a dude in an elaborate sporting costume—eyeglasses and a broad brimmed hat. Walking leisurely to the bank, a man who had evidently been sent ahead to secure a position vacated. A servant brought from the cab a folding stool and placed it on the bank; returning to the cab he produced a delicate rod and satchel. The rod was put together; the satchel was opened and a small silver bait box, a towel, a piece of soap and a bowl were placed on another stool alongside.

The servant opened an umbrella and held it over the fisherman's head to screen him from the sun and the fishing began. It was a long wait for a bite. Finally there was a nibble and miss; several more nibbles and misses, and presently there was a fish, sure enough. The excitement all along the bank was intense. With the aid of the landing net the fish was secured. The servant essayed to take it off the hook, but the fisherman anticipated him and held it up in triumph. But this operation wet the dude's gloves, and he took them off and threw them away.

Things were getting interesting and exciting, and blank the expense. Presently another fish, which, being secured, the servant dipped up water from the river and handed the dude the soap and towel; and he washed his hands. This was repeated every time he caught a fish. All this time a gendarme had been walking up and down, and approaching the lucky fisherman there followed an animated conversation with much gesticulating, seemingly a protest against such indiscriminate slaughter.

The dude waxed indignant and quit. The servant unjointed the rod, gathered up the stools, umbrella and fish basket and placed them in the cab, which had been waiting. The dude entered and was driven off with his catch, numbering about six, the aggregate weight of which might have been two pounds—an immense success. I have no doubt this great catch made an item in next morning's paper, with the usual lie about the weight of the string and the big one that was lost.

I had learned how the French do it. Evidently a little fishing goes a long way with a Frenchman. No doubt my little man went home, took a rose water bath and lay down for a rest after such a fatiguing and exciting episode. I though to myself how I would like to get that chap out in the Rockies on a thorn bush creek, of a hot day, and make him wade the stream, with an occasional stumble over a slippery bowlder and a souse under. What a power of good it would do him, and what fun for me!—Forest and Stream.

The Thumb Ring.

It has taken a long while for the thumb ring to make any headway in New York, but it is very slowly gaining ground. Mr. Dixey was the first man to wear a ring upon his thumb, and he has clung to it tenaciously for two years. It is a plain gold band, worn just below the joint, and it was placed there at first merely as a lark. It excited so much talk among the people who knew the burlesque actor that he has refused to take the ring off and has worn it ever since. Actors always have a certain following among young men whose brains are not of dangerous weight and who are capable of devoting their energies to small things. The small things have taken the form of a thumb ring, and there is a very considerable portion of rather young men about town who are following Mr. Dixey's example.—New York Sun.

Business Is Business.

Life Insurance Agent (out west)—What did Mr. Newcomer say?

Assistant—He wouldn't talk with me at all; said he was too busy to think about life insurance.

"Well, I'll hang around his house to-night and shoot holes through his windows, and when he comes down town in the morning you hide behind a fence in some vacant lot and put a few balls through the top of his hat. Then when he reaches his office I'll drop in and talk life insurance again."—New York Weekly.

Napoleon's Double.

In a book entitled "Etudes d'Histoire," which has just been published in Paris, there is a biography of the violinist, Alexandre Boucher, a man whose resemblance to the first Napoleon appears to have been something marvelous. In addition to his great talent as a fiddler, Boucher was a born actor, and often amused his companions by imitating Napoleon. When the king of Spain wished to choose the best among the collection of portraits of the first consul, Lucien Bonaparte wrote to him as follows: "Your majesty can make the choice by comparing those images, which are not faithful, with the living portrait of my brother that you possess in your court. When you look at Boucher you see Napoleon."

Later on the Empress Josephine wished to attach Boucher to the court of the Tuileries, but the emperor didn't want the fellow that looked like him, and wouldn't hear of it. At St. Petersburg Boucher was commanded by the empress to give a concert in the Palace of Elaghin. The salons were filled with guests. At the close of the entertainment the empress, accompanied by her sons, the Grand Dukes Nicholas and Michel, approached the artist, complimented him, and then told him to "do Napoleon." He pretended not to understand her. She insisted, and at last he told her that he understood her perfectly, but to imitate Napoleon and hold him up to the indiscreet curiosity of the crowd, and possibly to make a laughing stock of him, was something that he could not do. "And remember, madame," he added, "that the hero is dead!" To overcome his scruples she invited him into her own apartments, where in the presence of a few select guests, chosen by Boucher himself, he consented to "do Napoleon." The princes wanted him to put on a costume suitable to the occasion. Boucher with an imperious gesture waved them off. "No masquerade! gentlemen," said he. "You wish to see Napoleon. He is before you!" With a proud and sad expression he gazed at the empress and the princes. Then turning to M. de Modene, a Frenchman in the Russian army, he fixed upon him a look of profound scorn that made the gentleman very uncomfortable.

They saw Napoleon.—New York Sun.

Will Carleton's First Poem.

What may really be called my first poetic effort was written at 10 years of age, and was a letter in rhyme. My older sister was at boarding school; she had written for some of the papers and magazines, both in prose and poetry, and I thought I would show her that she had not carried away with her all the afflatus of the family. I heard of a neighboring young man who could write letters in rhyme, and so I thought I would undertake the same feat. I did up everything at the farm and in the vicinity in choice doggerel, and mailed it to her. A precious young goose she must have thought me. I represented her favorite horse as about to die of melancholy, because she was not there to ride him; told her the trees and flowers were all perishing because she was not present to smile upon them, and killed off two very worthy and healthy neighbors because their names happened to rhyme with some word of a mortuary character. The whole letter was wildly sepulchral in its nature, and half amused and half scared the young lady. I remember that it closed with these pathetic lines:

> I must end my letter
> And bring it to a close;
> Perhaps it will be better
> To make the next in prose.

The eagerness with which she consented to this proposition made me fear that poetry was not exactly my best card. But she was a dear, sweet girl, and upon her return home she petted and encouraged my poor little rhymes much more than they deserved. The grief of my boyhood was her death, a few years afterward. She would have made her mark in literature, and I hope is today writing songs in heaven.—Will Carleton in Ladies' Home Journal.

The Pan-American Congress.

The notion of the solidarity of America is one which has but recently come into consciousness among the people of the United States, such has been the force of race and religious prejudices. But, from the moment of its first appearance, that thought has been borne in upon us with rapidly increasing power, until it bids fair to create a sentiment and even a passion of Pan-Americanism, which cannot fail to have the largest and most beneficient effects. It is, of course, natural, and it is proper as well, that the first discussion of our relations with our southern neighbors should have reference to trade, moneys, and the means of intercommunication. But our Pan-American propaganda should aim chiefly at social and moral affiliations, and should be pursued in every way which will tend to bring the people concerned to a cordial and unselfish interest in each other's welfare and to the harmony and prosperity of all the Americas. The sentiment of Pan-Americanism that has appeared of late in a manner which, despite the interested efforts of subsidy seekers and cheap political jobbers, is so truly striking and so prophetic of good, could not fail to derive an immense impulse from a proper commemoration of the great occasion of 1892.—Gen. Francis A. Walker in Forum.

A Cure for Diphtheria

The following remedy is said to be the best known, at least it is worth trying, for physicians seem powerless to cope with the disease successfully. At the first indication of diphtheria in the throat of a child make the room close; then take a tin cup and pour into it a quantity of tar and turpentine, equal parts. Then hold the cup over the fire so as to fill the room with fumes. The little patient, on inhaling the fumes, will cough up and spit out all the membranous matter, and the diphtheria will pass off. The fumes of the tar and turpentine loosen the matter in the throat, and thus afford the relief that has baffled the skill of physicians.—Exchange.

A Warning.

MR. EDITOR.—It is a well-known fact that the majority of people are inclined to look upon a cold in the head as a matter of little importance—involving at the most only a temporary inconvenience. No more disastrous mistake was ever made. The neglected cold in the head is the source of the catarrhal affections with which about seven-tenths of the people of this country are afflicted, and catarrh itself is too often the preliminary stages to consumption and death. The symptoms of catarrh are manifold, but among them may be mentioned, offensive breath; dull, oppressive headache; offensive droppings from the nostrils into the throat and bronchial tubes, deafness or partial deafness, constant hawking and spitting, weak and watery eyes; a hacking cough and feeling of general debility; ringing in the ears and frequent dizziness. These are but a few of the more general symptoms, and those who experience them should lose no time in applying a remedy. Delays are proverbially dangerous, and in the case of this too prevalent disease may lead to death. We offer Nasal Balm to the public as a positive cure for cold in the head and for catarrh in all its forms and stages. Nasal Balm has been tested in thousands of cases, and the testimonials in our possession prove that it is all we claim for it. It has cured other sufferers, it will cure you. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable and does not require a douche, or any torturing instrument to apply it. Give it a trial and be convinced of its great efficacy. A BLOODLESS DUEL.

The Principals Exchange Spectacles and Fight a Birch Tree for Honor.

The four witnesses met at the brasserie. They were old chums, having served, along with the opponents, in the same regiment of Hussars. The conditions of the duel were soon settled; they all agreed in preventing their two comrades from cutting their throats for a mere fribble. At daybreak the antagonists and their witnesses met in the Vernieres woods, where the seconds, to equalize the chances, insisted upon the principals exchanging their spectacles, for Duplanchet, who is long sighted, can see farther than Boconard, who is short sighted. After a last attempt at reconciliation the two friends, who could not see at all, were placed in position; between them stood a fine young birch with smooth and supls stem. The witnesses gave the final signal and trotted off to sip a bock in the neighboring village.

"Touched!" said Boconard, as he dealt a vigorous head stroke.

"Never!" replied Duplanchet, while bestowing on his adversary a side stroke which made the birch tree tremble.

The fight was continued with the most cruel obstinacy till both looked black in the face. In three-quarters of an hour the witnesses, on returning to the scene, found them still fighting like grim death, though completely exhausted. Honor was, however, declared satisfied, the fight ceased, the notched sabers bore ample testimony to the equal prowess of both combatants, who now became reconciled on the spot, and the whole company adjourned to lunch.—Paris L' Universal.

The First Scientific Society.

It was named the "Academy of the Secrets of Nature," and was founded by Baptista Porta, in 1560. The "Royal Society for Promoting Natural Knowledge" was founded at Oxford, in 1658. From its records for 1660, the following curious entries are taken: "June 5th. His Grace the Duke of Buckingham promised to bring into the Society a piece of an Unicorn's horn. June 14th. A circle was made with powder of unicorn's horn, and a spider set in the middle of it, but it immediately ran out several times repeated. The spider once made some stay upon the powder. June 26th. Dr. Ent, Dr. Clark, Dr. Goddard, and Dr. Whistler were appointed curators of the proposition to torment a man presently with the sympathetic powder. June 10th. The fresh hazell sticks were produced wherewith the divining experiment was tried and found wanting."—Christian at Work."

Catholics in the British Empire.

According to the British Catholic Directory for 1890 the estimated Catholic population of the British empire is 9,730,000. It is distributed as follows: Ireland, 3,913,000; England and Wales, 1,360,000; Scotland, 327,000, and the colonies and dependencies, 4,130,000. The distribution among the colonies and dependencies is as follows: America (Canada, Newfoundland, West Indies, etc.), 2,200,000; Australasia (Australia, New Zealand, etc.), 580,000; Asia (British India, Ceylon, etc.), 1,044,000; Africa (South Africa, Gold Coast, Mauritius, etc.), 131,000; European colonies (Gibraltar, Malta and Gozo), 175,000. There are 25 archiepiscopal sees, 96 episcopal sees and 20 vicariates and prefectures apostolic. Several writers assert that at least 6,000,000 of the British Catholics are Irish.—N. Y. Sun.

LORD BRASSEY'S NAVAL ANNUAL.

Lord BRASSEY'S "Naval Annual" for 1890 is now out. This is the fourth issue of a most excellent work, and appears, as did its predecessor of last year, on the eve of the summer manœuvres, when more than at any other time the average tax payer and politician is induced to take a languid interest in naval matters. Lord BRASSEY describes the fleet as England's "right arm." But for her fleet England "would be a cipher in the councils of Europe, might be denuded of her colonies, and could not hold the Indian Empire a year. But for the fleet the English workingman might any day find his occupation gone. The greater the fleet and the wider the area of its operations, the more effective this mighty right arm of the nation must become. Every shilling devoted to it, if expended with economy and judgment, is well bestowed, for it insures England against those great accidental calamities which destroy the happiness and the prosperity, and sometimes lives of nations." Regarding features in which the navy is deficient Lord BRASSEY points to that of "stoking" as the most prominent. Citing the case of the Collingwood, which in the manœuvres last year was chased by the Rodney, an officer on the Collingwood is quoted as saying: "The Rodney, who was chasing us, seemed creeping closer, the smoke as well as the sound of her guns seemed nearer every minute. What did it mean? Our speed was usually great; what did it mean that we were thus being overhauled? The answer was not long in coming; our engines could not attain full speed owing to inefficient stoking." The want of capable stokers, says Lord BRASSEY, is the weakest point in our navy. While we are constantly adding to our fleet of ships, we are slurring over or neglecting altogether the necessity of manning them. The trouble seems to be that the pecuniary inducements offered by the navy are too small. The pay in the navy is £2 2s. 6d. a month. The merchant marine, however, offers £4 10s. for skilled firemen. "No adequate solution of the difficulty is likely to be found," says Lord BRASSEY, "till we have made up our minds to pay for it." Then with respect to the mobilization of naval forces, Lord BRASSEY has discovered that the French are much superior. The French quite without notice were able to put five cruisers and six torpedo boats in commission ready for sea in forty hours. Lord BRASSEY thinks it is to be doubted whether we should do as well under the circumstances. But the great problem to be solved is that of the stokers. Lord BRASSEY recommends that the Admiralty should call some of our leading shipowners into conference, and endeavor, with their assistance and co-operation, to arrange a plan by which stokers and engineers from the navy should be enabled to make a few voyages of instruction in the finest steamers of the mercantile marine. It is useless to enter [illegible] from the country for duties [illegible] stokeholes, unless we are able to give them a thorough training for the work which they are engaged to perform. To give this training we must have more ships in commission, or keep those ships which we have in commission more constantly at sea, or we must turn perhaps to the mercantile marine." In the matter of great guns it does not appear that the navy is satisfactorily well off. Two much work has been required of the guns in proporsion to their metal. During the proof at Woolwich one of the two 110-ton guns of the Victoria was found to have bent; steps have been taken to remedy this defect, but it is believed to be the decision of the Admiralty not to build any more guns of the same type.

On the whole, we discover that Lord BRASSEY has not a profound faith in the efficiency of the navy. In action, should it be expedient to run away, it cannot show a clean pair of heels for the want of capable stokers, and then there seems to be a likelihood of the big guns doing more damage to friends than to foes. This much, however, has to be borne in mind in criticising the navy. How much more efficient are the navies of other nations? The chances are that honors are easy in this respect. The modern ship-of-war is an experiment, and we may reasonably presume that the navies of France, Germany and Italy, each have their weak points. But it is of no use to borrow trouble. War has become such a serious matter that the nations will not engage in it. The stake is too tremendous. Causes which 25 years ago would have set Europe in a blaze now only send a ripple over diplomatic circles. With all the talk about war there is not, apparently, an issue on foot over which Europe will permit itself to fight. The issue is yet to come which will provoke war, nor do we apprehend that it will emanate from the Balkans.

AMBITION OR COMMON SENSE, WHICH?

Are we to account for BLAINE'S modified ideas of protection by the presence of the presidential bee in his bonnet? Doubtless there is much in it. BLAINE would like to be President of the United States, and who shall blame him. But afser all, might not a man advocate reciprocity and not be an aspirant for the presidency? Is there not enough common sense in the idea of reciprocity to warrant the preaching of it? It seems to us that a man of BLAINE'S ability could scarcely do less than oppose the hard-and-fast protective policy which the Republic party is determined to fasten on the United States. Men who endorsed the extreme measures of MCKINLEY must feel in their hearts that they are stultifying themselves. Infant industries! We have had enough of this cry. Common sense revolts against it. Shall BLAINE be charged with being ambitious because he has the courage of what must be his convictions. MR. OWEN, of Minneapolis, editor of Farm, Stock and Home, thus addresses the farmers of his State: "Farmers, you have been protecting infant industries for seventy years. * * * * HENRY CLAY, the great advocate of Protection, would not insult the intelligence of the American people by pretending that the tariff benefited any but the industries so protected. Modern protectionists are entitled to the honor of discovering that the tariff protected the farmer and laborer. Farmers, there is no Canaan that you can be taken to; no MOSES will arise to lead you, but you can save yourselves. You have the power in your hands; will you use it? Ballots will be more potent to put down tyranny and oppression in 1890 than bullets were in 1866."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

An English exchange says: The Government of the Dominion of Canada has given instructions to the effect that in the printing of all official documents and publications such words as "favour," "labour," "honour," etc., must be spelt after the English usage, with the "u," and not without it, as the Americans write the words. The French Canadians ought to accept this decision as a compliment, for the use of the letter "u" indicates a French origin for all these words. We should be glad to believe that English writers would always abide by such a rule. Words of Latin origin which have come to us through the Norman French, as most of these in question have, ought certainly to be spelt with the "u." If Canada is going to fight the battle of correct English spelling on the American continent, we hope the list of words will be greatly extended, and that we shall no longer have to dread the intrusion of such undesirable Americanisms as "theater" and "miter."

Only that the News for the past year has fought the good fight, contributing powerfully to the recent somersault of the Goverment, we should be inclined to resent the egotism which it frequently displays. With respect to the Government's recent abandonment of its own for the policy of the Opposition, the News takes all the credit to itself, alludes, indeed, to the Government's new land policy as an out and out adoption of a plank from the Independent platform, aye from the very platform of the News itself. This announcement, which ignores a political condition in opposition to the Government antecedent to the exegesis of Cottonism, reveals an egotism of the most bewildering sort. It is too monumental, to be taken seriously, we can only lay back and smile. But what does the Columbian think of it? Does it relish of having played a very inferior second fiddle while the News has been establishing a party and furnishing a platform whose planks the Government must substitute for the rotten boards they have been standing on for years? When the passionate John and the amusing egotist meet in the Senate House next winter, not the wool but the moss will fly. What a circus is in store for us?

The Canadian Tory is an abject creature indeed. He cannot disassociate the interests of Canada from the circumlocution office on Downing street. Replying to WIMAN'S suggestion that Canada be represented at Washington, the London Daily Free Press observes that: "Our will strength is linked with the prestige of British diplomacy. With such a representative as Sir CHAS. TUPPER in the counsels of the Government at London our interests are guarded so as to command respect from our Republican neighbors, as was evidenced in the Behring Sea negotiations, which was brought to a sudden stop because Lord SALISBURY said, after assenting to a close season for the protection of seals, that neither an Act of Parliament to give effect to the seal fishery regulation nor an order-in-council to have naval vessels co-operate in [illegible] was heard from. * * This is a sufficient answer to the charge made by the Grits and enforced by Mr. WIMAN, that our interests are jeopardized at Washington because our country is not adequately represented." Suppose British diplomacy should surrender our rights in Behring Sea? What value might we attach to the prestige of British diplomacy in such a case? Canada has complained in the past of her rights having been surrendered by England, what reason is there for thinking they will not be surrendered again? Canada is old enough and big enough and has interests extensive enough to warrant her dealing with them at first hand. Until the Canadian head is thoroughly disabused of the idea that all of her international transactions must be conducted through Imperial channels, she can never take the place among nations that her geographical position and her resources entitle her to, and as the preliminary move to this consummation, many of the present generation of politicians must be relegated to private life.

WHAT IS MORAL CHARACTER?

TO THE EDITOR:—Is it not evident that there is some unknown quantity in the Education Department's idea of the moral character required to be a teacher in this Province. For example, a teacher is doing his duty faithfully and conscientiously, and his school trustees officially inform the Superintendent of Education of the fact, yet Mr. Pope cancels the teacher's certificate for not doing his duty. Again, another teacher is dismissed by his school trustees for using intoxicants to such a degree as to interfere with his school duties, which fact is stated in their annual report and unanimously adopted by the electors, yet Mr. Pope does not cancel that teacher's certificate, and he actually applied for a position in our city schools last month. Now is not the inference justifiable that if the former teacher had used intoxicants his certificate would not have been cancelled? WATCHMAN.

THE ODD FELLOWS.

Enormous Attendanceat Chicago—The Rebekah Degree Prizes.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—The triennial cantonment of Patriarchs Militant begins to-day. A great many business houses are decorated with flags and banners bearing Odd Fellow emblems and insignia. Men in the uniform of the military branch of the order were numerous on the streets. Everything indicates that this celebration will be the largest gathering of members of any order held anywhere. An estimate made some time ago by General Underwood that the celebration would bring 100,000 strangers to the city, seems likely to fall short of the actual facts. It is probable the number of Odd Fellows and members of Odd Fellows' families who will be here during the week will be nearly 200,000.

Odd Fellows and Patriarchs held possession of Chicago. Every section of the United States is represented. Lieut-General Underwood, grand sire of the order and commander of the military branch of the Patriarchs Militant, sent out over half a million letters and circulars relative to the cantonment and in many other ways called attention to the great event. The contests in other branches of the order began early to-day and will continue throughout the week. Most of these will be held in Battery D armory and will be open to the initiated.

The contests in the work of the Rebekah degree of the woman's department were gallantly given precedence and began this morning. The proceedings were opened by the Queen of the Lakes Rebekah Degree Lodge 222 of Chicago. The prizes for which Rebekah lodges, to the number of eleven, are competing aggregate $1500. The lodges competing from outside of Chicago are from Kinosha, Wis.; Columbus, O.; Richmond, Ind.; Minneapolis, Bloomington and Omaha. At 3 p.m. the only public ceremony took place. This was the hoisting of American, Canadian and militant flags. This was the official signal that cantonment had begun. It was the intention to raise all three flags at the same instant, and the signal for that purpose was given by Underwood, but General Cable was determined that the stars and stripes should go up first, and as he had hold of the rope they did. Preceding and following the flag-raising a grand concert was in progress. To-night a magnificent reception and ball was given at Battery D armory, under the auspices of the Rebekah degree.

Newspapers Reducing Printers' Wages—A Strike Likely.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 5.—On Sunday the publishers of the Evening Express, Times, Herald and Tribune appeared before the typographical union and requested a reduction of the price of composition. To-day the publishers were notified that unless they signed an agreement to maintain the present rate for one year the printers would walk out Tuesday at noon. A conference will be held, but a strike is probable.

lington. It is a well known fact that nothing will make men who are locked out of on strike so liable to break the peace, when there is not the slightest occasion for any such action, as it creates a feeling of mistrust and even hatred, both to the men who are sent and to those who sent for them."

"Was there any danger of violence," was asked?"

"I most emphatically answer no. The locked out men are all well disposed, peaceable, law-abiding citizens. There never was an act of their's calculated to cause one moment's thought of violence. The men even inquired if there was anything wrong in parading the streets, and if there was they were willing to stop their procession right there, as they wished to do what was lawful and right. They even put a patrol on Wellington, so that no outsider could do any damage to the company's property, which might be blamed on them. In fact the conduct of the men since the lock-out has been irreproachable. They vacated their houses in the time specified by Judge Harrison, and in every way possible showed their respect for law and order."

"Have the men who went to work been threatened at all," was the next question.

"No they have not been threatened either directly or indirectly, as the union has instructed their men not to speak to the blacklegs or to have anything to do with them. The men who are working have gone to and fro to their work and have never been molested. It is true they had a guard of honor to their work on Monday composed of 200 of the locked out men, but no threats were used nor demonstrations, nothing stronger than the beating of tin pans, and in my opinion the blacklegs were highly honored by such a guard escorting them to work."

"Who will foot the bill, Mr. Keith?"

"Why, the Company will pay all the expenses, as it would be an outrage of justice to ask the district to do so, as there was not the slightest reason why the militia should be saddled upon us. There was no breach of the peace, no action on the part of the miners that could lead one to imagine they intended to break the law, destroy property or commit any misdemeanor, and in the face of these facts it would be an absurdity to expect the province would pay the piper that plays for the amusement of Messrs. Dunsmuir & Co."

"What is your opinion as an M. P. P. and a man on the whole business?" was next asked.

"To answer this requires a little retrogression. To make myself understood I must go back to the starting point on May 17th when a mass meeting of the miners of Nanaimo and Wellington was held on the bluff at North Wellington, and among other resolutions passed it was resolved that the miners of Wellington should work 8 hours from bank to bank, the same time as the New Vancouver Coal Co., and east Wellington coal Co's. have been working. It was also resolved that Messrs. Dunsmuir would be asked to recognize their workmen as an organized body, and that committees of the men should be treated with on all questions arising from disputes between workmen and bosses, and it was resolved that the men should start on the eight-hour system on the Monday morning following. A committee was sent to interview Mr. Bryden during the meeting as to the recognition of committees. Well, when the committee asked Mr. Bryden if he was willing to recognize the committee of the men, he most emphatically said no, that he would never recognize any such thing. Mr. James Dunsmuir was also present and he endorsed Mr. Bryden, or perhaps I might say Mr. Bryden endorsed him. So much for the committee part of the business. On Monday morning the men went to commence the eight hour system, but they were informed that unless they came before 7 o'clock, the time they started when working 9 and 9½ hours, there was no work for them. They refused to work more than 8 hours, so the present situation is the result, but in considering the whole affair it must be remembered that the miners were and are willing to leave the matter open to arbitration, either by business men or a fair quota of mine managers and miners. Now it is generally conceded that arbitration is the fairest means of settling a difficulty of this description. Now, strange as it may appear, we find a number of men who are generally stigmatized as ignorant, uneducated, know-nothings, willing to arbitrate, but our friends, the Messrs. Dunsmuir, who have the full benefit of all that wealth can confer will not consent to arbitration. We find to our surprise that they are behind their own workmen. They will never recognize organized labor, but at the same time they forgot that the whole world over we have combinations and organizations of all descriptions, masters combine, men combine, nations combine. The principles of combinations are world-wide, and woven into the tissues of almost every class of people, and as a man I cannot too strongly deprecate the course taken by the company refusing to grant to their men the same privileges as are cheerfully given by the employers in the adjoining collieries. I think their policy the most short-sighted and foolish of anything I ever came across. While this lock-out continues they are losing their trade, and above all what every true man clings to more than life itself, their reputations. They are alienating the respect of their equals, and the respect of those below them in the social circle is completely gone."

"What is your opinion as an M.P.P.?"

"My opinion as an M.P.P. is that the action of Messrs. Dunsmuirs is calculated to bring our fair province into disrepute and more especially Victoria and surrounding districts. Vancouver Island will be pointed at as one of the places where lawlessness and rowdyism reigns supreme. The very fact of the 'C' Battery being sent to Wellington points at us the finger of scorn, for the news of the evictions and subsequent events has traveled over the civilized world. We say emigration is one of the greatest factors in the building up of a new country, but if people are seeking new homes will they come to a province where such scenes are enacted. I say no. We find they will go elsewhere, and my opinion is that the action of Messrs. Dunsmuir is an insult to the people of the province and especially to those of the district I have the honor to represent to have ever sent the military here on such a foolish business."

LAST NIGHT.

Meeting Held—Will Parade To-day—Rumors of a Compromise.

Special to the TIMES.]

NANAIMO, Aug. 6, 10 a. m.—Your correspondent returned from the "seat of war" at half past eleven last night. The miners held a meeting, at which Tully Boyce presided. The questions were discussed freely, although the indignant men will in no way break law. They will parade at three o'clock this afternoon. It is rumored that the company is weakening and have sent a third party to discuss the situation. It is also said they have offered to recognize eight hours a day, but wish the miners to wait three months before the pit committee is recognized.

At ten o'clock last night the miners and soldiers were mixing sociably together and the question of why the soldiers were sent remains unanswered. There is not the slightest sign of trouble. The troops last night were provided with blankets and beds; forty new mattresses and one hundred blankets were sent over from Nanaimo. The men are quite comfortable.

Your correspondent understands the bill is charged to the province.

After the miner's meeting I saw Tully Boyce, Joseph Carter and Robert Jervies, leaders of the miners. All deny that bad language or threats of violence had been used. Only in one instance had expressions been used, but they were checked by the officers. The miners spoken to by your correspondent blame Mr. Alexander Dunsmuir for most of the trouble. An incident occurred on the arrival of the militia yesterday. Mr. Alex. Dunsmuir asked Col. Holmes to order the men under him to take away the flags and an effigy, and to disperse the procession. Col. Holmes replied that he had no right to do so while the men were on the public street and peaceable.

From all that can be learned, it seems that a few hints were given on Monday that when the men who are at work in the mines came up, an attack would be made on them by the union men. The latter deny this.

Tully Boyce last night wired the News-Advertiser that the Colonist reports of the situation were false and wrong, and in the interests of truth asked that a contradiction be given to them.

THE MILITIA LAW.

The Authority Under Which the Soldiers Were Called Out.

The citizens who do not believe that there was any necessity for calling out the militia to suppress a possible disturbance at Wellington, have been enquiring as to the authority under which soldiers can, at the instance of their magistrates, be summoned to the assistance of the civil power. The following are the clauses in the military act governing the case. The magistrates—Messrs. Robert Ward, D. R. Harris and George Morrison—have Provincial jurisdiction, so that, however much the propriety of the steps may be questioned, there is little doubt that it was legally taken.

The Active Militia, or any corps thereof, shall be liable to be called out for active service with their arms and ammunition, in aid of the civil power in any case in which a riot, disturbance of the peace, or other emergency, requiring such service occurs, or is, in the opinion of the civil authorities hereinafter mentioned, anticipated as likely to occur, and, in either case, to be beyond the powers of the civil authorities to suppress, or to prevent or deal with, whether such riot, disturbance or other emergency occurs, or is so anticipated within or without the municipality in which such corps is raised or organized.

2. The senior officer of the Active Militia present at any locality shall call out the same or such portion thereof as he considers necessary for the purpose of preventing or suppressing any such actual or anticipated riot or disturbance, or for the purpose of meeting and dealing with any such emergency as aforesaid, when thereunto required in writing by the chairman or custos of the Quarter Sessions of the Peace, or by any three justices of the peace of whom the warden, mayor, or other head of the municipality or county in which such riot, disturbance or other emergency occurs or is anticipated as aforesaid, may be one; and he shall obey such instructions as are lawfully given to him by any justice of the peace in regard to the suppression of any such actual riot, or disturbance or in regard to the anticipation of such riot, disturbance or other emergency, or to the suppression of the same, or to the aid to be given to the civil power in case of any such riot, disturbance or other emergency.

3. Every such requisition in writing, as aforesaid, shall express on the face thereof the actual occurrence of a riot, disturbance or emergency or the anticipation thereof, requiring such service of the Active Militia in aid of the civil power for the suppression thereof.

4. Every officer and man of such Active Militia, or any portion thereof, shall, on every such occasion, obey the orders of his commanding officer; and the officers and men, when so called out, shall, without any further or other appointment, and without taking any oath of office, be special constables, and shall be considered to act as such as long as they remain so called out; but they shall act only as a military body, and shall be individually liable to obey the orders of their military commanding officer only.

5. When the Active Militia, or any corps thereof, is so called out in aid of the civil power, the municipality in which their services are required shall pay them, when so employed, the rates authorized to be paid for actual service to officers and men, and one dollar per diem for each horse actually and necessarily used by them, together with an allowance of one dollar to each officer, of subsistence, and fifty cents per diem in lieu of forage for each horse,—and, in addition, shall provide them with proper lodging and with stabling for their horses; and the said pay and allowances for subsistence and forage, as also the value of lodging and stabling, unless furnished in kind by the municipality, may be recovered from it by the officer commanding the corps, in his own name, and, when so recovered, shall be paid over to the persons entitled thereto.

6. Such pay and allowances of the force called out, together with the reasonable cost of transport may, pending payment by the municipality, be advanced in the first instance out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada, by authority of the Governor in Council; but such advance shall not interfere with the liability of the municipality, and the commanding officer shall at once, in his own name, proceed against the municipality for the recovery of such pay, allowances and cost of transport, and shall, on receipt thereof, pay over the amount to Her Majesty. 42 V., c. 11, s. 27, part.

All Quiet This Afternoon — Condemning the Magistrates.

WELLINGTON, Aug. 6, 1 p. m.—All quiet here at 1 p. m. The military men are evidently enjoying a picnic. There are no signs of disturbance. There will be a procession at 3 o'clock. The Free Press this afternoon will devote a column condemning the action of the Victoria magistrates who signed the requisition for troops. The names of the three signers will be published in capital letters.

SPORTING NOTES.

Brief Resume of Sporting Matters Here and There.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Goodwood races, the swell sporting event of the season, begin this week. There is much betting on the principal races. For the Steward's Cup Lord Abingdon's Pioneer stands 7 to 1, the result of public investments; Lord Randolph Churchill's Abbesse de Jouarre figures at 10 to 1, while the Prince of Wales' The Imp is strongly backed at 12 to 1. For the historical Goodwood Stakes Carabinier is favorite at 6 to 1.

The St. Leger is not attracting much attention just now, but the Derby winner, Sanfoin, is backed for it at 6 to 1.

Gaming Club.

Some time ago several prominent gentlemen of this city formed the Prevost Island Gaming Club and purchased Prevost Island in the Gulf of Georgia. The island is about 35 miles from this city and contains in the neighborhood of 1500 acres. The first move towards stocking the island with game was made last week when Major Peters of C. Battery, with several game keepers, left for the island on the tug Falcon with about 50 pheasants of different kinds. Some of these arrived from China and Japan a few weeks ago, and the rest were raised in the province. The island is reserved for members of the club only, and no doubt when the project is well under way the members will have the best sport obtainable, as the island is well adapted for the purpose. It is said that the company will make a number of improvements, such as building wharves, houses, etc.

THE CZAR DISPLEASED.

The Sultan's Grant of Investiture to Bulgarian Bishops the Cause.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 3.—Danger of serious trouble in the east of Europe seems to be somewhat increased by the recent occurrences in Constantinople and the action of England in persuading the sultan to grant berattas of investiture to the Bulgarian bishops in Macedonia. The czar is astonished and greatly excited over the porte's defiance of the St. Petersburg government and its utter disregard of Russia's protest against this cause. Advices which were received here from M. Nelidoff, the Russian ambassador at Constantinople, led the czar to believe that the sultan would submit to his admonitions. The czar, however, visits all the blame of the sultan's cavalier treatment of himself upon his diplomatic representative.

M. Nelidoff left Stamboul for Sebastopol last night. He goes away, ostensibly on a holiday, but it is well understood here that he is really under the ban of the czar, who has lost all confidence in him. The czar has openly in the court circle complained of, what he calls Nelidoff's deception, and he added, with every show of rage and distrust:

"I cannot rely on a single one of my diplomats. They all lie. They always promise, but never fulfill their promises."

The absence of the Russian envoy from Stamboul, at this time, implies that there will be considerable delay in the action of Russia in this peculiar crisis, so that no immediate complications are to be looked for.

AN IOWAN ON VICTORIA.

WHAT A STRANGER SAYS ABOUT OUR CITY.

Lack of Vim—Beauty of Situation—Social and Courteous—Peculiarities that Were Observed by the Writer—Personal Reflections and Other Remarks.

The following [illegible] from the Sioux City (Iowa) Journal:

We now arrive at Victoria and after shaking President Harrison's dust from our overcoats we step upon British soil and bow to the Queen's flag. We find here a young city of 22,000 people, 4000 of them being Chinamen. Electric cars, motor lines and electric lights we find in all of their completeness here. The student of the "tenderfoot" tourist in looking over the map would naturally form a conclusion that Vancouver Island was a worthless country. But not so. Our entire party were completely surprised. If nature ever set apart any tract of land that she intended for a park, noted for its many charming qualities, it was Vancouver Island. It affords a continuous variety of scenery whether driving over it or boating around it. Deep and rocky harbors, gravel beaches, all kinds of stone and timber, beautiful shade trees, nearly all kinds of fruit, (except tropical), salt and fresh water extensive fisheries, fertile soil, health and even temperature, are some of the many qualities of the island. Had the city of Victoria the American vim and spirit that Sioux City has, how she would boom. Why, it would soon be the leading city of the Pacific slope, notwithstanding the start that other western cities already have. Victoria would be glad to be annexed to the United States, and it would be a valuable annexation. As it is, the imaginary line prevents American blood from mingling with her social and commercial interests to a large extent. The inhabitants are principally English, Scotch, Canadians, Chinamen and half-breed Indians. The English and Scotch, which afford the principal population and wealth, are, as a rule, well fixed and don't have that ambition for more that characterizes the average American.

The people of Victoria are very social and courteous to all visitors, at least that was our experience, and, as a rule, the entire island is exceedingly loyal to American laws and wishes. They celebrate the Fourth of July with us, and observe that day with as much dignity and ceremony as they do the Queen's birthday. The American flag floats there occasionally, but of course the British predominates.

Victoria affords a great harbor for the British fleet. There is now lying in the Esquimalt British naval station of the Pacific six well-equipped men-of-war. We visited one of them, the Warspite, which was mounted by 600 soldiers, four guns that weighed twenty-two tons each, shooting a ball weighing 360 pounds a distance of 10,000 yards, consuming 160 pounds of powder at every shot. The boat also had six five-ton guns, also six torpedo shoots, fired by electricity. Then the muskets, pistols and swords were all in their places ready for any emergency. This boat is sixty-five feet wide, 360 long and draws twenty-nine feet of water, and cost something over $2,000,000. We spent only half an hour looking it over, but would like to have remained a week.

Every road leading to the country is a beauty, and affords very picturesque scenery. Every field or suburban residence looks like a park. The city has a park nearly as fine as the Lincoln park of Chicago.

The joss-houses, or places of worship for the Chinaman, are very interesting for the visitor. As a rule the Chinamen know no Sabbath, and when they go to their joss-house to worship their idols it is always alone, and whenever they feel like it. These houses are kept open day and night, without a guard of any kind, but they are never molested.

City property is very valuable. A lot 50 by 100 feet, occupying about the same place from the commercial center of Victoria as the New Pacific house does in Sioux City, was recently sold for $23,000. The buildings, more especially in the residence portion, are built after the old English style. One stone residence we saw, known as the Dunsmuir castle, and which is being built of stone will cost $1,000,000 before it is completed.

There are many peculiarities in Victoria—at least they seemed so to me. There are no flies or mosquitoes, hence no screens over the doors or windows. The weather is very temperate, it rarely being warmer than 70 degrees or colder than what they term "10 degrees below frost." The thermometer rarely goes below zero. They have to manufacture ice, and have no ice for sleigh or skates. We sleep comfortably under a sheet, four woolen blankets and a spread. A cool breeze is most always blowing down from Alaska. It is the custom when meeting footmen, horsemen or teams to turn to the left, instead of to the right, as is our custom. Even the chromos are different. One we noticed advertising the McCormick harvester. It has a valley of wheat, with stump and rocks, with a range of snow-capped mountains on either side, showing dense pine forests up the foothills. Oats, fruit and potatoes are sold by the pound, and money is counted by the bit, and when you go to the laundry, John will say: "Me washe keafler one bittie, sheirte two bittie." Every wholesale business house shuts up on Saturday afternoon, and the retail business always closes at sundown. As a class the people are not solicitous, and if they have anything you want, you must ask for it. There are a great many Indians here as well as halfbreeds. They do a great soliciting business trying to sell fish, halibut, salmon, etc.

We met our friend Hon. L. W. Myers, the United States consul to British Columbia, who is an old Iowa editor, the Louisa County Republican is his paper. Mr. Myers informed us he was very much interested in seeing Iowa people and hearing Iowa news, and especially was he pleased when he read in the Burlington Hawkeye of the nomination of Geo. D. Perkins, of the Eleventh. We also formed an agreeable acquaintance with C. H. Gibbons and B. A. Phillips, the former being upon the editorial staff of the Daily Colonist. Mr. Gibbons is a young man of great ability and fine social qualities, and will make a prominent and useful man in the Queen's staff of editors. Mr. Phillips is a son of Hon. Alexander Phillips, the first settler in Victoria, and the man who played with Edwin Booth in the first theatre that was ever given on the Pacific slope. He also made the first cup of coffee, baked the first loaf of bread and made the first coffin that was ever made in Victoria.

The Victorians are very much interested in United States politics—more so than we are in theirs—and in this connection we would say that the old adage "to go away from home for home news" was again illustrated while there.

Victoria is very conveniently and beautifully located, being on the south bank of the island, overlooking the strait, several small villages on the opposite shore, and about fifteen or twenty miles away, and the snow-capped ranges of the Olympic and Cascade, and, upon a clear day, Mount Tacoma, 200 miles southeast, and Mount Baker, 150 miles east, can be plainly seen with the naked eye, and quite frequently steam and smoke is seen to issue from its top. Our sojourn in Victoria was one day and one night, and it was a most pleasant visit. If any of the readers of this ever go to the Sound country they should not fail to pay a visit to this park land.

The Daily Times.

CITY AND PROVINCIAL.

THE LATE JOHN M'INTYRE.

Brief Sketch of His Life—A Pioneer Esteemed by all Who Knew Him.

It was my painful duty, a few days ago, to announce through the medium of your widely read journal, the death of John McIntyre, long and favorably known throughout the province. The deceased was an old pioneer of the Pacific Coast, having arrived in the Golden State in 1854, where he was engaged in many enterprises with varying success, leaving California in 1858 to seek his fortune in British Columbia. He followed mining for many years on the Fraser, Cariboo, Big Bend, and the Peace river, and when travelling from the latter country in 1872 he was almost reduced to starvation, his scanty supply of provisions having given out. His mining ventures in this province never met the success he deserved. In 1877 he assumed the business of the late Thos. R. Buie, and with his honesty and fair dealing soon accumulated considerable wealth. For the last few years he had spent a goodly portion of his means in sending parties out prospecting in this vicinity.

Deceased was a man of sterling qualities, generous to a fault, and it may be truly said of him that his left hand never knew what his right hand gave away. Few that have ever passed away from our midst have caused a deeper feeling of sorrow. The esteem in which he was held was shown by his many friends travelling long distances to pay their last tribute of respect. The Rev. Mr. Hall came from Kamloops to perform the burial service. He spoke long and eloquently over his remains, and he feelingly reminded his old friends that stood around his grave that their lives, too, must of necessity be of short duration.

Deceased was born in Scotland on May the 4th, 1824, being at the time of his death upwards of 66 years of age. He leaves no relatives in the Province. May his soul rest in peace.

THOS. SEWARD.

MR. SMITH OF LILLOOET.

Some of His Exaggerations in the Colonist.—The Facts of the Case.

I have read Mr. Smith's reports and the Colonist's editorial comments thereon. I am not in a position to state how much land may be in the Chilcotin country, a part of which is the Lillooet country. In the Lillooet proper there is precious little land now obtainable fit for agricultural pursuits. There is considerable mountain land that will eventually be used for dairy pursuits. Any land fit for agriculture, and upon which water can be got for what it is worth, has been taken up long ago. Lillooet has probably suffered less from land speculators than any district in the province, but no thanks to the administration for this.

About the bands of wild horses running at large, it is correct enough, but exaggerated. It does not follow that because horses can live out during the winter that cattle and sheep could do so. Any stock man worth the name will tell you that horses will live and thrive where cattle and sheep will perish. Mr. Smith says that if enterprising go-ahead men would engage in the business great results would be realized.' Really this is far from a compliment to the men now engaged in the business. The inference is that those now engaged in the business are sleepy drones from whom no satisfactory results need be expected. This can rest between Mr. Smith and his constituents. If they chose to stand it we can. If the cattle business is so profitable and Lillooett offers so many advantages, how is it that Mr. Smith does not embark in the business and show his benighted constituents how the thing is done. The fact is, no one knows better than Mr. Smith, that if a thousand acres of arable land were wanted in one block, it could not be found in the Lillooet district outside of the Chilcotin country. An amusing part of Mr. Smith's report is his reference to the Chinese miner. I wonder if the rest of the report is as true as this. Mr. Smith would fain persuade you that the Chinese miners are of as much benefit to the Province as white miners would be. If he can make the people of British Columbia to believe this he had better make reporting his business. Mr. Smith himself, instead of embarking in any industrial enterprise, prefers to barter with the Chinese, buy their gold for less than it is worth, and make a profit upon the sale. He might not be able to do the same with the white miner. Hence Mr. Smith's love for the Chinese.

A SMALL RANCHER.

PLAYING HORSE.

A Pretty Expensive Pastime—$5 for a Short Ride.

Thos. A. Pope, the individual who was the prosecutor in an assault case several days ago, appeared in the police court again to-day to answer to a charge of leaving a cart in the middle of Douglas street. By the evidence of the police officer it was shown that several men were hauling Pope around the streets in the cart and having what they might call a good time, but what the police call too good a time. Pope pleaded that he simply accepted an invitation to take a ride, and was not responsible for leaving the cart on the street. His honor differed with him, however, and said he was as resposible as the rest of the men, as the driver has charge of a vehicle, not the horses. Pope said he did not consider that he was a driver, as the horses that he had did not need any encouragment. After reminding Pope that only a few days ago he was the cause of a man being sent to jail for two months, and also advising him not to get drunk any more, his honor imposed a fine of $5, which sum the defendant got from one of his friends and paid over to the court.

Attempted Burglary.

Last evening the family of O. Fletcher, of 238 Fort street, were awakened by some one who was trying to gain an entrance to their house by an open window. The window was held up by a small piece of stick, and while the would-be burglar was trying to get in the stick slipped, and the window came down with a crash and the individual, whoever he was, ran away.

Alaskan Summer Route

Is becoming a very fashionable one tourists, and at present on our thoroughfares are noticeable in large numbers those waiting for the Queen going north. Not less observable is it to passers by the quantity of furniture and carpets that daily leaves the store of Hastie & Erskine, 62 Government street which is altogether owing to the fashionable stock carried and good value given by them.

The China Steamer.

The s. s. City of Pekin, which is due here on the 12th inst. from the Orient, has on board 100 Chinese and a large amount of freight for this port. The Chinamen will of course have to pay the $50 which, amounting to $5000, will be quite an item among the customs receipts. No move has yet been made by the city to show their appreciation of the course taken by the company in making Victoria a terminus, and therefore it is somebody's place to start the ball a-rolling.

Messages Refused.

Private messages to Nanaimo, stating that a detachment of militia would leave for Wellington at midday yesterday, were refused transmission by the telegraph company. One was a message to the Free Press and another to a press representative. Inspector Wilson explained that the company was authorized, when in the public interest and for public safety, it was considered necessary to withhold messages, to refuse them. It was feared that if the strikers had an intimation in advance that the militia were to arrive, an excitement might be provoked which possibly would lead to a breach of the peace. The precaution, we think, was unnecessary.

The Alberni Road.

Mr. Wm. Dickson, who came down from Alberni via Nanaimo last week, reports that the road from Alberni to Nanaimo is in a terrible condition, thanks to the care taken of it by the Provincial Government. From Alberni to Englishman's river the road is covered with fallen trees, and is almost impassable, on horseback. From Englishman's river to Nanaimo a more serious obstruction is met with, the telephone wire having fallen down is lying on the road and very often entangles the horse's legs and cuts them severely. Mr. Dickson met the mail carrier on the road and that official was complaining badly about the neglect of the government in not looking after matters at least a little.

Last Night's Performance.

The opening farce at the Victoria last night was called "A Kiss in the Dark," and was a jolly little piece, well acted. Mrs. Adderly was very clever as Mrs. Pettibone, Miss Thorpe made a most acceptable Mary, the other characters being assumed by Messrs. McEnnery and Adderly, who made the most of them. The fairy comedy "The Wicked World" was again presented and ran even smoother than on Monday night.

A large and fashionable audience was again in attendance. Mr. Adderly has added another to the list of his successors, and has proved himself a valuable acquisition to Victoria. The amusement loving public fully appreciate his efforts for their entertainment, and await with pleasurable expectation his next play.

Installation.

Last evening at the regular meeting of Perseverance Lodge, No. 1, I.O.G.T., the following officers were duly installed by Lodge Deputy R. J. Plummer assisted by Bros. Bauman and Store.

C. T., Bro. S. D. Robertson; V. T., Sis. Vantin; Sec., Bro. McClaire; A. S., Sis. Swan; F. S., Sis. Robertson; Trea., Sis. Innis; Chap., Bro. Cormick; M., Bro. McBinnon; D. M., Sis. Fletcher; G. M., Sis. Hall; S. M., Bro. Scafe.

Bro. L. Hall, Sis. Hall and Bro. Bauman were elected delegates to the next session of the Grand Lodge to be held in Nanaimo, on Sept. 9th. Bro. Plummer was also recommended as Lodge Deputy for the coming year. Next Tuesday evening the members will be entertained by the newly installed officers.

Her Last Trip.

The steamer Queen will make her last excursion trip to Alaska for this season on the 16th instead of the 31st as announced, thus making one trip less than was at first intended. This course was made necessary as such small inducements were offered for the last trip, and the company could not see their way clear to even make expenses. The Queen has carried more passengers to Alaska this season than ever before, in spite of the fact that not as many trips were made. These excursions have not been calling at Victoria without doing the city an immense amount of good. The steamers take on all their stores here besides making a long stop both coming and going, and consequently the passengers, all of whom land, do the storekeepers more or less good.

Dr. Griffin's Bible.

New Westminster Truth says there is no truth whatever about Dr. Griffin writing a new version of the Bible. It simply happens that Griffin being of a studious nature, obtained leave from the Protestant chaplain, the Rev. R. Jamieson, to write in his cell and place the fly leaves in his bible with mucilage. He, therefore, wrote out many texts, different parts of the bible, and has made out many references for his own use, never having even dreamed of writing a revised edition of the sacred volume. The TIMES informants are probably a lady and gentleman from Victoria, who called upon the convict on the 12th of July last and were very anxious to see him. His cell was pointed out to them, and the gentleman was shown some Bible texts written and enlarged upon by Griffin who was at that time at work out on the field. None of the officers of the penitentiary knew of any such thing being done by their convict, and even he himself, when asked what the writing was, said that they were references for his own use.

And a Complete List of First-Class Properties to Suit Investors.

DOES IT PAY TO ADVERTISE?

Well, That Depends.

It has paid us. On Saturday, the 5th instant, we advertised 20 per cent. off all Clothing. We have been rushing ever since, although some of our customers had to climb over a pile of rubbish about as high as a six-rail fence. If the streets were all full of rubbish it would be better for the town. It's a sign of progress.

OUR SALE STILL CONTINUES. We are bound to clean out our summer stocks. Better lose our profit than carry them over. We have piles of BOYS' SUITS left. We are not selling as many as we expected. Probably on account of the difficulty in getting to our store.

Ladies, it will pay you to go around the block. We mean to clear them out. You SAVE 20 PER CENT. on all Clothing.

Throughout the United Kingdom "Montserrat" Lime-Fruit Juice has eclipsed all others as a hot weather beverage, and it is rapidly becoming equally popular here.

Mr. J. Montague Leet will deliver an address at Philharmonic Hall on Friday, the 22nd instant, on the social business, professional and political life of the city of Victoria, as effecting immigration to it. Chair taken at 8 o'clock. aug. 6 2t

In making a rock cut on a railway grade, about 10 miles west of Nelson, a 2-foot vein of fine looking ore was uncovered. It is said to carry a good percentage of copper, and to look not unlike the ore at Toad mountain. The ledge was located by W. H. Henderson.

Mr. Offerhaus intends opening a private school at his residence, 102 John street, assisted by Mrs. Offerhaus, who will take charge of the English branches, while the former will pay particular attention to all branches of mathematics, French and German. Mr. Offerhaus has been teaching for the last thirteen years in this Province, and is well known as an efficient teacher.

The generosity of Jack Tar is proverbial and was illustrated last evening in a small matter which proved its correctness. A blind man was stationed at Salmon's corner, grinding out cracked immitations of by-gone melodies. There was the usual crowd of loiterers and passers-by, but few contributions. Two blue-jackets, however, noticing that the man was blind, dived down into their pockets, and each deposited a piece of money in the tin cup of the music-dispenser, and hurried on. Their example was followed by quite a few who were struck by the kindness of the act.

Borne to the Grave.

Fred. Shakespeare returned last evening from Seattle with the body of his brother Harry, who was drowned at Seattle Sunday last. The funeral took place this afternoon from the residence of the deceased's father, N. Shakespeare, at 2 o'clock this afternoon and from the Gorge Road Methodist church at 2:30. A large number of friends attended, among them the employees in the boiler shop of the Albion Iron works where the deceased used to work.

The funeral of the late F. Steitz also took place this afternoon and was well attended by the many friends of the deceased.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes. *

The steamer will take the excursionists to Nanaimo and a special train will convey them to this city. The Vancouver lacrosse club will come with them and play a match with the Victoria team on the same day. The party will return on the same way home.

Ice Cream Festival.

An ice cream festival, with good music, will be held in the lecture room of St. Andrew's church this (Wednesday) evening at eight o'clock. Mr. Pieser the celebrated basso-profundo of Italian opera fame has kindly consented to assist the local musical talent. Admission, adults 25 cents, children 10 cents.

Rifle Tournament.

The annual tournament of the B. C. Rifle Association commenced at the new range at Goldstream this morning at 10 o'clock and continued throughout the day. A number of members from Westminster and Vancouver came down last night to take part. The range is well sheltered from the wind and no doubt some good scores will be the result. Besides those taking part a number of ladies and gentlemen left by the morning train and spent the day at the range.

Fatal Accident.

A miner named John Calairi, known as Carlo Johnny, met with a fatal accident Monday evening in No. 1 shaft of the New Vancouver Coal Company, says the Free Press. It appears that he was engaged at his work when all of a sudden the top coal gave way and buried him beneath it. He was conveyed to the hospital, where Dr. L. T. Davis, colliery surgeon pro tem, with the assistance of Dr. Rice, examined him and found that he was suffering from internal injuries, the crushing he had received being a bad one. The doctors did all in their power for the patient but he expired at 3 Tuesday morning. The deceased was 30 years of age, and a native of Holstien.

Have You Seen It?

The location of the TIMES office is well known to Victorians, but once in a while a stranger is heard inquiring his way to the office of Victoria's popular evening paper, and for the benefit of those who don't know the exact spot to find us in, a beautiful new sign has been recently raised across the sidewalk in front of the office, bearing in massive gold letters the words, "The TIMES." As a specimen of the signmaker's art, it is probably the peer of any sign of its kind in Victoria, and reflects much credit on its designer, Mr. Hopfenitz, of the Victoria Sign Company. We cordially recommend his work to those in need of anything in his line of business.

Dispute About Land.

[Before Mr. Justice Drake.]

O'Sullivan vs. Taylor—Before Mr. Justice Drake.—The plaintiff claimed a triangular strip of land as part of lot 910, Quebec street, Victoria, which lot he had purchased at a tax sale in 1863; the land in dispute being then fenced in as lot 910. By the evidence of Mr. Hargreaves the defendant showed that the strip formed part of 909. For the defendant it was argued, first, that the plaintiff had no title to 910, which was the property of the government, subject to the rights of the original owner; tax sales having been declared void by act of parliament in 1867. Second, that treating the strip as part of 909, the plaintiff had not acquired a title by possession, because defendant purchased that lot in February, 1889, from Elliott, who held a certificate of indefeasible title, dated 9th June, 1870 and that the defendant had no notice of the plaintiff's claim to part of 909. Evidence was given showing that the boundary line between 909 and 910 had been altered by Elliott and the plaintiff; but the plaintiff not having registered the deed the defendant had no notice of it. The action was dismissed with costs. Messrs. Davie and Bodwell represented the plaintiff, and Mr. Hett and Mr. Walls the defendant.

CITY POLICE COURT.

(Before Hon. A. N. Richards, Q. C., P. M.)

After the Pope case the particulars of which are published in another column had been disposed of this morning, and a drunk had been fined $5, the case of Sims, charged with stealing a valise, came up and the prisoner was sent up for four months with hard labor.

Jno. Clark, charged with threatening to kill D. L. Kelly was bound over in the sum of $1,000 and two sureties of $500 each.

Asptin Smith, charged with refusing to support his wife was remanded until tomorrow.

PERSONAL.

Movements of Well Known People in Various Directions.

Robt. Grant came over from Vancouver last night.

Mr. Forrest Angus returned last night from the Mainland.

Mr. Robt. H. Benedict leaves for Lachute, Que., by to night's boat.

F. W. Teague, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., has returned from a trip to Boston.

Sir John Macdonald left River Du Loup to-day on a trip to Prince Edward Island.

His Honor the Lieut.-Governor and Mrs. Nelson went up to New Westminster this morning to open the exhibition of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association.

Mrs. Waitt, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kent and Miss Waitt will return by the Islander this evening from the Mainland, where they have been enjoying a few weeks holiday.

U. S. Consul Meyer, returned last evening from Tacoma. He went across the Sound Sunday night to meet Mrs. Meyers and his son and daughter-in-law who will in the future make Victoria their home. Mr. Meyers has secured a comfortable house in Victoria west, which the family will occupy for the present.

Court of Appeal.

In the Supreme Court to-day the appeal case of Sinclair and Tappan vs. the C. P. R. Company, came up before Justices McCreight and Walkem. This is an appeal to the full court from an order made by the Chief Justice refusing to remit back the award made by two of the arbitrators appointed by the Chief Justice, for reconsideration. Theo. Davie, Q. C., and Mr. Bodwell for plaintiffs, and C. E. Pooley, Q. C., and H. D. Helmcken for the defendants. The case was still going on as the TIMES goes to press.

Eight Hours.

The stone-cutters of the city, who some weeks ago organized a union, have notified the builders of the city that on and after the 23rd of October next they will work only eight hours a day, wages to remain as at present. Stone-cutters' wages are from $4.50 to $5.00 per day for nine hours work. The builders are not prepared to concede the request, and probably, as considerable time has been given them to consider the question a mutually satisfactory arrangement will be effected. It will be difficult for workingmen to ignore the question of wages in demanding a reduction of the hours of labor, especially when the pay is generally conceded to be adequate.

National Dances and Music

The grand international concert by R. McKenzie Munro in the Victoria Theatre on Saturday night will be a unique performance, and one which will commend itself especially to Scotchmen. Mr. Munro is a champion of the Highland fling, the sword dance, the sailor's hornpipe, and Irish jig, and in bagpipe music. Photographs in costume, showing the many medals which he has won in competitions in Australasia, were on exhibition to day at Campbell's corner, and attracted the attention of the curious. The Scotchman who fails to attend will run the risk of being considered unpatriotic.

From the North.

The steamer Barbara Boscowitz returned at 3 o'clock this afternoon with 51 white and 25 Indian and Chinese passengers. As freight she brought 1000 cases of salmon from the British American cannery at Skeena, and 30,000 feet of cedar lumber from Port Simpson. The canneries on the Skeena, and also at River's Inlet, have completed packing, but on the Naas they are still hard at work and will be so for some time. The run is better than it has previously been this season, but is still poor. The steamers Maude and Louise were spoken in the Skeena, but neither had been to the wreck of the Sardonyx. It is still unknown how that vessel is.
